THE INDIANA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The preliminary organization of the Indiana Historical Society was effected December 11, 1830, and it was chartered by an act of the General Assembly of Indiana approved January 10, 1831. Its proceedings from the date of its organization to the year 1886 will be found in Vol. I of the publications of the Society. Its Presidents prior to the year 1886 were Benjamin Parke, Samuel Merrill, Isaac Blackford and John Law, and its Recording Secretaries were Bethuel F. Morris, George H. Dunn, William Sheets, Thomas L. Sullivan, John B. Dillon and William H. H. Terrell.

The late William H. English donated $2,500 to the Society as a permanent endowment, the interest only to be used by the Society. This endowment, by the addition of accumulated interest, has been increased to $3,500. The only revenues of the Society are the interest on its endowment fund and the annual dues of the members, which are $2.00 per year.

An article in the Indianapolis News of September 23, 1922, gives the following account of the Society's work:

BENJAMIN PARKE, PRESIDENT

Benjamin Parke, of Salem, was made the first President. John H. Farnham, of Washington county, apparently the principal mover in the organization, was made corresponding secretary and served efficiently.

Farnham, Parke and Bethuel F. Morris and James Blake, of Indianapolis, were incorporators of the society, which was established by an act of incorporation passed by the general assembly January 10, 1831. The act was conceived in such a liberal spirit that no need of revision of the charter has been felt in nearly 100 years since.

For five years the society showed marked activity and nearly all the prominent men of the state at the time were members. This characteristic of the society has continued throughout its history. A perusal of the minutes of the organization becomes a study of the beacon lights of Indiana's development as a state.

Fourteen Governors of the state have held membership in the Society. They were James Whitcomb, Albert G. Porter, Claude Matthews, Ira J. Chase, James A. Mount, Noah Noble, James Brown Ray, David Wallace, H. S. Lane, Paris C. Dunning, Joseph A. Wright and Thomas A. Hendricks, of a past time, and Samuel M. Ralston and Warren T. McCray, of the present.

For the first five years, the Society, largely through the efforts of Mr. Farnham, received a complete set of early journals of the state house of representatives and the state senate, and from Nathan Dane, of Beverly, Mass., received an authoritative history of the ordinance of 1787, under which the northwest territory was governed.

From 1835 to 1886 the society had a record of suspensions of activity and reorganization. In 1886 reorganization was effected which has continued without interruption to the present.

ONLY ONE SECRETARY

Since 1886 the society has had one secretary continuously—Jacob P. Dunn, of Indianapolis, and only four presidents—William H. English, 1886 to 1896; W. W. Woollen, 1896 to 1900; D. W. Howe, 1900 to 1921, and Charles W. Moores.

“The importance and necessity of collecting and preserving the materials for a comprehensive and accurate history of our country, natural, civil and political, many of which are of an ephemeral and transitory nature, and in the absence of well-directed efforts to preserve them, are rapidly passing into oblivion,” and the fact that “the establishment of safe depositories for the keeping of natural curiosities, manuscripts, public documents, etc., in the custody of intelligent guardians interested in their accumulation and preservation, has ever been found promotive of the public good and auxiliary to the advancement of science and literature," were the two reasons behind the starting of the Society, according to the statement made at the first meeting by Mr. Farnham.

The objects of the society, as set forth more specifically in a circular of information sent out soon after the first meeting to other societies and states, were:

"The collection of materials calculated to shed light on the natural, civil and political history of Indiana.

"The promotion of useful knowledge and the friendly and profitable intercourse of such citizens as are disposed to unite in such a cause.

"The history and present condition of the Indian tribes within the state.

"The collection and description of ancient remains and natural curiosities; the formation of geological, mineralogical and botanical cabinets; full descriptions of the soil, climate and productions of the state; and, in fine, the collection of every fact and thing that can be made subservient to the use of the society."

TO MEET SEMI-ANNUALLY

For the achievement of these objects, the society set out to meet "semi-annually at the Courthouse in Indianapolis on the second days of the sessions of the supreme court" and to hold an "annual meeting of the same on the first Saturday succeeding the meeting of the general assembly."

In 1886 the Society turned its attention chiefly to the publication of historical materials. Previously, it had sought to collect "rare, interesting and valuable materials of western history," and had tried to get citizens of the counties of the state to find out the origin of the names of counties and obtain biographical material on the early leaders in each settlement, but nothing was published.

A large part of the work of the society since 1886 has been to recover the papers read before the organization in the first fifty-six years and to piece together the scattered minutes. In 1886, no paper read previously before the Society was in its possession in any form. Volume I of the society publications now contains, it is believed, every paper read before the Society preceding 1886, and complete minutes up to that time, with the exception of a few meetings.

SEVEN LARGE VOLUMES

At the present time the society has seven large volumes of publications. Papers read before the society and minutes of proceedings have been preserved with care since 1886.

Volume 1 of the publications was printed in 1897. Other volumes appeared as follows: Volume 2, 1895; Volume 3, 1905; Volume 4, 1911; Volume 5, 1915; Volume 6, 1919; and Volume 7 is just completed.

The publications include historical monographs on a wide range of subjects related to the history of Indiana.

From the beginning the Society's records have been adorned with the names of distinguished men who were members or who contributed in some way to the successful achievement of its objects. The Governors who were members have been mentioned. The list of the first honorary members is impressive. They were: Lewis Cass, of Michigan territory; William Henry Harrison, of Ohio; Edward Coles, of Illinois; William McClure, of New Harmony; Andrew Wylie, of Bloomington; James Hall, of Vandalia, Ill., and John Baddolet and Francis Vigo, of Knox county.

Later, Edward Everett, Jared Sparks, John Quincy Adams, George Bancroft and William H. Prescott, all of Massachusetts, and Dr. Lyman Beecher, of Cincinnati, were made honorary members. Henry Ward Beecher was a member and served on the executive committee in 1842. David Starr Jordan, then a professor in Indiana University, and Maurice Thompson, novelist, were members.

Prominent in the society at the present time are James A. Woodburn, of Indiana University; Charles W. Moores, of Indianapolis; Harlow Lindley, of Earlham College; William Dudley Foulke, of Richmond; Logan Esarey, editor of the Indiana Quarterly Magazine of History; Jesse Weik, of Greencastle; Meredith Nicholson, John W. Oliver, Jacob P. Dunn, George S. Cotman and Kate Milner Rabb, all of Indianapolis.

Thirty-five members of the society have gone beyond the mere form of being members and have written Indiana history, chief of whom, perhaps, was John B. Dillon, who is regarded as the "father of Indiana history." He was a member from 1835 to his death in 1879.

But from its origin the Society has been "cribbed, cabined and confined" in its activities for want of a permanent home and money.

OUTLOOK NOW BRIGHT

The outlook for the society never was as bright as it is now, however. Sentiment has grown for many months that the Indiana world war memorial should be designed in such a way as to provide for the housing of the Society, together with related agencies of the state—the State Library, the State Historical Commission and the State Museum.

And then in August came the heartening information that Delavan Smith, publisher of The Indianapolis News, in his will had given to the Society $150,000 for the construction of a building to contain its records and collections and had provided that the Society should receive his entire library, consisting of valuable Americana.

Mr. Smith, the minutes of proceedings show, was elected a member of the society at the regular annual meeting Thursday, December 28, 1905.

Previously to the gift of Mr. Smith the only bequests left to the Society were by W. H. English and Judge Howe, Society Presidents. Mr. English in his will gave the Society $2,500, in trust, the income to be used for the purposes of the Society. This bequest helped immeasurably the work of the society after 1896. Judge Howe made the Society the residuary legatee of his estate, subject to life estates in his wife and daughter.

Nearly every other state historical society in the country is supported by state money. The Indiana Society is not an agency of the state and has received small help from that source. In 1859 the minutes of the Society make mention of a "liberal appropriation" from the general assembly to aid the organization. The appropriation amounted to $500.

Quartered now here, now there, in Indianapolis, the Society was permitted to move into a room in the present Statehouse on its completion in 1888. The accommodations never have been adequate, and all except committee meetings have had to be held elsewhere.

The first attempt to get separate building for the housing of the State Library, State Museum and State Historical Society originated in the Society in 1910. It now appears that what had been for years a wistful dream soon will be a fine reality.

ACTION BY LEGISLATURE

In 1915 the state legislature created as one of the state agencies the Indiana Historical Commission and outlined among its duties co-operation with the Indiana Historical Society and county historical societies over the state.

The commission and the society work together in closest harmony for the achievements of common purposes. In December, 1918, the Society started agitation for the writing of a local history of the world war. The commission has the task in hand. One of four proposed volumes has been published. The material for the others is being put into shape for publication in the near future.

In 1919, John H. Holliday, long a member of the society, suggested that all organizations in the state interested in local history should meet once a year in a conference on the subject. The fourth of these conferences is planned for December of this year, to be held, as usual, at the Claypool hotel. The attendance at these conferences and their fruitfulness have increased every year.

How much more abundant and accessible might be the documentary historical resources of this state had "The Historical Society of Indiana" (which was changed somewhere in the course of four or five revisions of the constitution, to "The Indiana Historical Society"), been made in 1830 a special interest of the state government and equipped as a result, with a building and money! Who can say?

With an increasing membership, meaning more adequate finances, and with the certain promise of a home of its own in the near future, the Indiana Historical Society may say, with one of the soldiers in "Hamlet:"

The morn, in russet mantle clad,
Walks o'er the dew of yon high eastern hill.

Following will be found the Legislative Charter, the revised Constitution adopted by the Society April 17, 1886, with subsequent amendments, and a list of its officers and members on January 1, 1923, together with a list of the Society's publications:

LEGISLATIVE CHARTER

AN ACT TO INCORPORATE THE INDIANA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Approved January 10, 1831

CORPORATE STYLE AND POWERS

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, That Benjamin Parke, John H. Farnham, Bethuel F. Morris and James Blake, with their associates, are hereby created and constituted a body politic and corporate, by the name and style of the "Indiana Historical Society," and by such name may have perpetual succession, hold, purchase, receive, enjoy and transfer any property, real and personal, have and use a common seal, sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, defend and be defended in all courts of judicature whatever.

ANNUAL MEETINGS AND ELECTIONS

Sec. 2. There shall be an annual meeting of the members of said society at the time and place appointed by their constitution; at which time and place the officers of said society named in said constitution shall be elected, who shall continue in office until the next annual meeting, and until their successors are elected. The members of said society at such meeting may alter and amend their constitution, change the time of the annual meeting, and frame such laws for the government of said Society as they shall think proper, the same not being inconsistent with the laws and constitution of this State.

BY-LAWS FOR SOCIETY

RULES FOR OFFICERS

Sec. 3. The officers of said Society may make such rules for their own government and for carrying into effect the objects of the Society, not inconsistent with its constitution, as they shall think proper; all which, together with their receipts and disbursements, shall be reported to the annual meetings of the Society.

SOCIETY ENTITLED TO LAWS, JOURNALS, ETC.

Sec. 4. The secretary of state shall deliver to the officers of said Society one copy of the laws of this State and one copy of the journals of the senate and house of representatives, which may hereafter be published, and also copies of the laws and journals of former years, where more than five copies of the same for any one year remain in his office. The secretary shall also deliver to the officers of said Society all books and other articles which have been or may be transmitted to his office for the use of said Society.

CONSTITUTION

ARTICLE I

The name of this Society shall be the Indiana Historical Society.

ARTICLE II

The objects of the Society shall be the collection and preservation of all materials calculated to shed light on the natural, civil and political history of Indiana, the publication and circulation of historical documents, the promotion of useful knowledge, and the friendly and profitable intercourse of such citizens as are disposed to promote these ends.

ARTICLE III

(As Amended December 28, 1922)

There shall be an annual meeting of the Society on the 11th day of December, or approximately thereto, at such hour and place as may be designated by the President of the Society in the notice thereof, which notice shall be sent to each member and published in the daily papers of Indianapolis. A private meeting of the Society may be called at any time by the President, or, in case of death or absence of the President, by any officer of the Society at the request of any three members, and there shall be the like power to call a public meeting at any time on the request of five members. At any meeting six members shall constitute a quorum to transact business.

ARTICLE IV

(As Amended December 30, 1912)

The officers of the Society shall be:

First—A President, who shall preside and preserve order at all meetings of the Society.

Second—Three Vice-Presidents, one of whom, in the order of election, shall preside at all meetings in the absence of the President.

Third—A Corresponding Secretary, who shall be charged with all correspondence required by the affairs of the Society.

Fourth—A Recording Secretary, who shall record and preserve the minutes of the Society.

Fifth—A Treasurer, who shall receive all monies due the Society, and hold the same subject to its order, and make an annual report of all receipts and disbursements.

Sixth—An Executive Committee consisting of the President, Vice-Presidents, Secretaries and Treasurer, and five others to be elected as other officers are chosen, whose duty it shall be to meet on the days upon which the Society holds its sessions or at such other times as they deem expedient; to select subjects for public lectures and appoint the individuals by whom the same shall be delivered at the annual meetings of the Society; to attend to the publication of such lectures and other documents as they may deem expedient; to take charge of all books, papers, specimens, models, curiosities, pictures, etc., belonging to the society, and to submit reports of their proceedings at the meetings of the Society. They shall have power to make by-laws not inconsistent with the constitution; to direct and superintend all disbursements, and generally to carry into effect all measures not otherwise provided for. Three shall constitute a quorum.

ARTICLE V

(As Amended February 20, 1913)

Applications for membership shall be upon written petition and shall be referred to the Executive Committee. The Executive Committee shall have sole and final authority to elect to membership in the Society.

ARTICLE VI

Officers shall be elected by ballot at the annual meetings of the Society, and shall continue in office for one year, and until their successors are elected. Vacancies in any office may be filled by the Executive Committee until the next meeting of the Society, at which time the vacant office shall be filled by ballot. Any officer may be removed from office for malfeasance or misconduct injurious to the Society, under the regulations prescribed for the expulsion of members.

ARTICLE VII

(As Amended February 20, 1913)

SECTION 1. Each member shall pay into the hands of the Treasurer two dollars ($2.00) annually as dues. On failure to pay such dues within thirty (30) days after December 31st of each year, or after the delinquent's election to membership, such delinquent shall be suspended from all privileges of membership, without motion, and after thirty (30) days' delinquency during the suspension, after notice by the Secretary, it shall be the duty of the Secretary to strike his name from the rolls, and he shall be no longer a member, nor shall any such person be again eligible for membership until his arrearages are paid.

SEC. 2. Every member in good standing in the Society shall be entitled to receive, without charge to himself, a copy of each publication of the Society which shall have been issued during the period of his membership, and the Executive Committee shall have authority to authorize the issuance to members of any periodical, publication or magazines over the publication of which the Society has control or to the support of which the Society contributes, without cost to such member. (The provisions of this section may be made retroactive only upon formal action by the Executive Committee of the Society, and only as to publications of which, in the judgment of the committee, the Society may have a sufficient number to justify such free distribution.)

ARTICLE VIII

Any member of the Society shall at any time have the right of withdrawing, upon filing with the Secretary a notice in writing of such intention, accompanied by the Treasurer's receipt in full for all dues.

ARTICLE IX

This constitution shall be subject to amendment at any meeting of the Society by a vote of three-fourths of the members present: Provided, that an amendment offered at any meeting shall lie over to the next meeting before being adopted.
